

How to Disagree with People About Climate Change

Understanding the structure of arguments about climate change patterns helps us engage those who disagree with us more productively. In this interactive presentation, Lynda Walsh, a rhetoric professor from the University of Nevada, Reno, will introduce some basic but powerful principles of argumentation theory that will prepare participants not only to understand and debate climate change more effectively but also to locate common ground with those who initially appear to be opponents on this issue.

TERC FALL LECTURE

Nov.
29

5:30 – 7:30 p.m.

UC Davis Tahoe Science Center
291 Country Club Dr.,
Incline Village, Nevada

$5 suggested donation,
refreshments and no-host bar 5:30 p.m., presentation begins at 6 p.m.

Please register for your seat at <http://tahoe.ucdavis.edu/events/>

Lynda Walsh is a Professor of English at the University of Nevada, Reno, where she teaches courses on writing and argumentation and studies public perceptions of science, particularly surrounding climate change and other environmental issues.